

EXHIBIT M

issuing the subpoena “shall file” with the appropriate circuit court a copy of the subpoena and, inter alia, supporting materials showing that:

... one or more communications that are or may be tortious or illegal have been made by the anonymous communicator, or that the party requesting the subpoena has a legitimate, good faith basis to contend that such party is the victim of conduct actionable in the jurisdiction where the suit was filed. A copy of the communications that are the subject of the action or subpoena shall be submitted.

Va. Code. § 8.01-407(A)(1)(a.) (emphasis added). Additionally, two copies of the subpoena and the supporting materials shall be served on the person to whom it is addressed. Va. Code. § 8.01-407(A)(2). Here, the plaintiff has doubly failed as to these requirements. He has failed to file the supporting materials with the Court, and he has failed to serve copies of the supporting materials on The Hawkins Law Firm, PC.

3. Third, the SDT fails to substantively satisfy the requirements of Va. Code § 8.01(A)(1)(a.) -- namely, the requirement that the anonymous communicator has made “one or more of the communications that are or may be tortious or illegal.” Here, nothing in the Complaint comes close to proving that the defendants made any statements that meet this standard. To the contrary, the statements at issue -- allegedly made by a fictional cow and a caricature of plaintiff’s mother -- are obvious examples of rhetorical hyperbole, parody, caricature, and satire. If the First Amendment, as it most certainly does, allows a student newspaper to call a Virginia Tech official the “Director of Butt Licking”¹ or Hustler magazine to publish a caricature of Jerry Falwell having incestuous sex with his mother in an outhouse², then it surely permits a fictional cow and a satirical mother to poke fun at a Congressman. As a federal appeals court judge, in an eloquent defense of the First Amendment, keenly observed more than thirty years ago:

Nothing is more thoroughly democratic than to have the high-and-mighty lampooned and spoofed. An observant electorate may also gain by watching the reactions of objects of satiric comment, noting those who take themselves seriously and those whose self-perspective is somewhat more relaxed.

Falwell v. Flynt, 805 F.2d 484,487 (4th Cir. 1986) (Wilkinson, J., dissenting from the denial of rehearing en banc).

4. Here, no reasonable person could seriously believe that either the fictional cow or the satirical mother was making statements of actual facts. Yeagle, 255 Va. at 296; 497 S.E.2d at 137. Instead, “[t]he irreverent, overwrought word choice would surely give away their subjective character, as well as negate any impression that they assert facts verifiable in a defamation action.” Edwards v. Schwartz, 378 F. Supp.3d 468, 518 (W.D. Va. 2019). As such, the Complaint fails as a matter of law to state a claim for defamation, which, in turn, means it also fails as a matter of law to state claims for insulting words and conspiracy. See, e.g., Potomac Valve & Fitting, Inc. v. Crawford Fitting Co., 829 F.2d 1280, 1284 (4th Cir. 1987) (explaining that Virginia’s insulting words statute “has been interpreted by Virginia courts to be virtually co-extensive with the common law action for defamation” and that they “must ineluctably ‘rise or fall together’”); Dunlap v. Cottman Transmission Systems, LLC, 287 Va. 207, 215, 754 S.E.2d 313, 317 (2014) (“actions for common law civil conspiracy and statutory business conspiracy lie only if a plaintiff sustains damages as a result of an act that is itself wrongful or tortious.”) (emphasis added). Given this, plaintiff cannot, as a matter of law, show that the SDT is valid under the substantive requirements of Va. Code § 8.01(A)(1)(a.).

5. Fourth and lastly, the SDT calls for items protected by the attorney-client privilege. Specifically, items 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 seek all communications which relate to attorney-client or otherwise protected communications, such as those protected through a joint-defense privilege and the work-product doctrine. As such, these requests should be quashed and/or a protective order should be issued as to them.

WHEREFORE, for the reasons stated above, The Hawkins Law Firm, PC respectfully requests that this Court quash the subpoena duces tecum issued by plaintiff's counsel and/or issue a protective order as to the subpoena duces tecum.

Respectfully submitted,
